Colette and Justin

(Belgium, DRC, France/Feature Doc/2022/89m)

Los Angeles Premiere

Dir: Alain Kassanda

Out of place in both Belgium and the Congo and determined to understand the experience of Belgian colonialism and the fight for Congolese independence, a filmmaker interviews his grandparents—Colette and Justin. Together, we all watch old news footage, remember a visit from the Belgian king, and recall the lives of the nascent Black bourgeoisie who served the colonial administration. What ultimately emerges is an evocative, poetic and thoughtful meditation on the intersection of political and family history, and the multi-generational destructive reach of colonialism.
